WILD ENGINE

Crushes a Well Known Farmer To Death.

Geo. W. Winfree Killed Saturday Morning at His Home Near Casky.

Geo. W. Winfree, one of the best known farmers in Christian county, was the victim of a fatal accident at six o'clock Saturday morning at his home near Casky. He was crushed to death while handling a separator and traction engine. While not instantly killed, he was hurt in such a way that he died within thirty minutes.

Mr. Winfree and his brother Matt Winfree had been operating the thrasher for several weeks and on Friday night Mr. Winfree finished his own crop. The engine was pulled into the shed, but the separator was left outside until the next morning. Early Saturday morning Mr. Winfree fired up the engine and with the assistance of a negro boy named Hwedy Wagoner backed it out from under the long shed in which the machine was kept and started it towards the separator to couple on to it and pull it back into the shed, the thrashing season being over. Mr. Winfree was standing on the engine, which was backing down upon the separator. It began to go faster than intended and threatened to become unmanageable. Mr. Winfree saw it rapidly approaching the separator and realized that he was in danger. He tried to work the brakes but failed to stop it and then grabbed for the lever controlling the throttle. In his excitement he pulled it the wrong way and threw the throttle wide open. With a plung the engine shot against the separator a few feet away. Then was no way to dodge, no place to jump and nothing to prevent the awful fate that befell him. He was caught between the engine and the separator and horribly crushed about the chest. The negro boy bravely ran to his assistance and turned the lever back, causing the engine to reverse. The helpless body of the unfortunate man fell to the ground and as soon as help could be called was taken into the house. Mr. Winfree spoke once or twice after reaching the house, trying to explain his injuries, but he sank rapidly and died in half an hour.

He was the third son of a family of 14 children, all of whom reached maturity. He is the third to die. He leaves a large family—five daughters and three small sons. He was born Sept. 7, 1847 and, was in his 52nd year.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon and the burial took place in the family graveyard at his home. Mr. Winfree was an elder in the Cumberland Presbyterian church and was a man of prominence and solid worth. His untimely death was a shock to the entire community in which he had long been a leading citizen.

She had intended to take a trip to Colorado for her impaired health, but was taken sick just before she was to have started and grew worse from week to week until she died as above stated.

Her death removes in the midst of a useful career one of the noblest of young women. She was a devout christian, and a loving daughter and sister. She possessed a cultured mind, well trained in the line of work she had entered upon with enthusiasm. Her loss will be felt severely in social, religious and educational circles.

HOW THE TYPHOON CAME.

Chinese Legend Which Accounts for Its Origin.

This very odd bit is by a Chinaman: "A little schoolboy, while on his way to school one day, picked up what seemed to him a small white pebble. He put it into his pocket. It proved to be a snake egg, and in time, through the heat of his pocket, it hatched out a young reptile.

"The boy fell in love with it, and carried it from day to day to school with him, and fed it with part of his own lunch, until it became too big to be carried, when he made a nest for it at his home.

"But one day it suddenly grew to an enormous size, and upon the boy's arrival home he was frightened to death.

"When the monster saw what he had done he was sorely afflicted and refused to be fed, but immediately put on mourning by turning his color from brown to pure black. He crawled beside the grave of his departed friend, and lay there for seven days and nights.

"At the completion of the seventh night he came back to his late home; but the boy's old mother was so enraged at him for killing her only son that she picked up an ax and chopped his tail off.

"With a fearful scream and a lash of what was left of his tail he fell the house and made his way to the Moo Soon San mountains, where he shows himself except once a year, just about the time when he lost his tail, to come out and make trouble for the people by creating storms called the 'Typhoon.' This he does to square himself for losing his valuable tail."—Golden Days.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Merchant Who Couldn't Understand Cause of His Failure.

It's a foolish captain who doesn't take soundings or solar observations. No ship owner would intrust a vessel to such a man. And no conservative, well managed bank would trust a business man who neglects to take stock and ascertain just where he is at. The Michigan Tradesman tells the following story:

"Land! but I don't see why I should fail," he kept on saying. "Mebbe, though, I didn't collect sharp enough."

"You have a heap of goods round here," said the other, looking about him.

"Yes, more or less."

"When did you take the last inventory?"

"Inventory? Take everything down?"

"Yes."

"And make out a list?"

"Yes."

"And dust off the shelves and mop the floor?"

"That's it."

"And clean the windows, and paint the front of the store?"

"Yes."

"I never went into that. I was going to, one day about 15 years ago, but they had a wrestling match in town, and I forgot the inventory. Mercy on me! but I can't understand why I should fail!"

HOGS DYING.

By The Wholesale in Ballard and Cerulean County,

Hogs are reported by the farmers as dying by the wholesale in Ballard and Carlisle counties. The disease is a very peculiar one. The hogs get sick, stagger about a few moments and drop dead. The disease is called the "blind staggers," but of course this, not the proper name which should be used.

CURIOUS CONTRACTS.

An Unusual Bid for Barbers—Firm Advertises for Poets.

A glance at any of the journals advertising for tenders for public contracts will reveal to the student some rather curious undertakings. For instance, quite recently the authorities at the Marston Green cottage homes for children, near Birmingham, advertised for tenders for the cutting of the children's hair during 12 months, the hair of each child to be operated upon once per month during the said period. A lump net sum had to be named for the work, and tenders had to be in by a specified date.

A very similar tender was required some time ago by another local authority for the shaving of the aged inmates of the workhouse, the contractors having to guarantee the supply of skilled assistants who would not damage the cheeks and chins of the venerable paupers whilst performing the contracted work.

To have one's chimney swept by contract would seem to some people as a rather unusual proceeding, yet we find the Marston Green people, of whom mention has been made above, demanding tenders for the sweeping of certain chimneys three times per annum. "The coat to be left upon the ground," though for what purpose this latter condition is made the writer is not sufficiently versed in chimney sweeping tactics to know.

A large London vestry is desirous of entering into a contract with a firm for the removal of 65 tons of old tins containing household refuse collected by the dustmen, whilst another vestry actually advertises for "Tenders for the use of a horse and cart" during certain hours of the day for a couple of weeks. One would think that the cost of the advertisement and clerical charges would more than counterbalance such hire, but evidently the advertisers know their business best, and hence the advertisement in question.

Perhaps, however, the most curious contract on record is the one referred to in the following advertisement, which the writer copied from an American journal some time ago. It ran thus:

"Contracts wanted by — Co. of the western Pacific states for the writing of verses advertising their goods during the coming season. Contracting poets to submit samples of their wares and to accompany same with declaration on oath that the lines are original. The firm reserves the right of declining the lowest of any tender."

The writer believes that many large concerns in England are in the habit of retaining "poets" to celebrate their wares, but he is not aware that any English firm has yet gone to the length of putting out the work to public tender.—London Tit-Bits.

DIZZY SUMS.

Government Transactions That Make One's Head Swim.

The figures necessary to express the stupendous transactions of the government are so large as to be incomprehensible. It has been said that the mind cannot so nearly grasp the real significance of a million units as it can the idea of the infinitesimal and government transactions are almost invariably expressed in millions. Some idea of this may be gathered from the following figures, which will have an interest to most readers, aside from their purpose as an illustration. Clip them and keep them handy. They may come useful in an argument.

Last year the government mint at Philadelphia turned out more coin than at any time since 1800. The grand total was $27,654,452, of which $14,759,257 was gold, $11,770,395 silver and the balance in nickels and coppers. The coppers alone would have made a fair fort for the government debt amounted to $1,473,940,981, of which four-fifths is interest bearing. In the treasury at that time there was cash on hand to the value of $930,431,351, of which $281,729,435 was in gold, $503,212,854 in silver and the balance paper and small coin. There are current liabilities which, after deduction, leave a grand balance of $294,764,695. This would be enough to buy titles for all of New York City's "400." The flow into the treasury went on at the rate of over $600,000 per month during the last six months of the year, the new internal revenue alone furnishing over $32,000,000 of this in the month of December.

The last year's marked increase will be offset in a measure by additional disbursements, one of which is the Hull army bill. The cost of maintaining the regular army on a peace footing heretofore has been a little over $24,000,000 per year, but the new $24,000,000 will require $23,000,000.

The Joe Blackburn Club of Louisville has bolted Goebel's nomination, although Joe Blackburn himself introduced Goebel to the convention when he accepted the nomination and is even now preparing the handbook for use in the campaign. It is about time for the Joe Blackburn club to change its name.

Bill Goebel was nominated by the Democratic convention, of which Bill Sweeney failed to be chairman. Bill Ellis did more than any one man to prevent the counting in of Sweeney. Bill Stone was defeated and Bill Owens is still trying to tell from a point of view outside of the convention how it happened. Bill Haldeman has returned to the party and Bill Breckinridge is trying to do so. Bill Deboe's convention at Lexington met and nominated Bill Taylor for Governor. Bill Bradley refused to attend and other Bills too numerous to mention are lining up on one side or the other.

Judge Tarvin, of Covington, has published in the Republican papers and other papers bolting Goebel's nomination, a very foolish letter to Chairman Young, urging the Democratic committee to adopt a resolution refusing to accept the support of the Courier-Journal, saying that he himself would rather see Goebel defeated than to be elected with the assistance of the Courier-Journal. If the Courier-Journal sees proper to support the Democratic ticket, it has the same right to do so that the Dispatch has to give aid and counsel to the Republican ticket by the course it is pursuing.

The Breckinridge News in a lengthy editorial bolts the Democratic ticket, or at least says it will not support Goebel. The principal reason given is that Mr. Goebel is too extreme in his opposition to the L. & N. railroad. Bro Babbage does not intimate how he will vote, as between the only two candidates in the field. He explains that the News is not a partisan journal, but of late years it has worked more for the promotion of the material welfare of Kentucky and its home county than it has for party success.

STREET LIGHTING ORDINANCE.

WHEREAS—At a regular meeting of the City Council, of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, held on June 2nd, 1899, a resolution was adopted directing the water and light committee of this Council, consisting of H. W. Tibbs, George Dalton and L. T. Brasher, to transmit to this Council at its next regular session, with its recommendation an ordinance authorizing a contract to be made for lighting the city for one year from October 2nd, 1899, and an expenditure of money for that purpose, with an estimate of the cost, and whereas, said Water and Light Committee have made the following report:

TO THE HONORABLE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

□ We, the undersigned members of the Water and Light Committee, of your Council, who were, at the last regular meeting of the Council held June 2nd, 1899, directed to transmit to this Council at its next regular meeting, with its recommendation, an ordinance authorizing a contract to be made for lighting the City of Hopkinsville for one year from October 2nd, 1899, and an expenditure of money for that purpose, with an estimate of the cost, respectfully report that we have made a thorough investigation of the question and are of the opinion that the City should be lighted with electric arc lights, and that the expenditure necessary for procuring and paying for said lights for one year, will be about five thousand dollars. That said contract should be for not less than sixty arc lights of 2,000 candle power each, equal in steadiness and brilliancy to any two thousand candle power lamps in use in any City in the United States. And we submit herewith an ordinance providing for the expenditure by the City of the necessary money for the purpose of paying for said lights for one year from October 2nd, 1899, and directing the City Clerk to advertise for ten days in some paper printed in the City of Hopkinsville, Ky., for sealed bids for lighting the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, with electric lights as above, to be made upon terms and conditions set out in said ordinance.

Now therefore be it ordained:

1. That the above report of the Water and Light Committee be and the same is hereby received and approved and the recommendations contained therein adopted.

2. That an appropriation is hereby made of the sum of $5,000, or as much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose of paying for the lighting of the City with Electric Arc Lights, for the year from October 2nd, 1899, under a contract that may be hereafter entered into by the City for the lighting of its streets.

3. That the City Clerk is hereby directed to advertise in some newspaper published in the City of Hopkinsville, Ky., for ten days, for sealed bids to be filed with the City Clerk, before 4 o'clock p. m., August 4th, 1899, for lighting of the City of Hopkinsville, with sixty or more electric arc lights, erected at points to be designated by the authorized agents of the City, bids to be made under following specifications:

NUMBER.—Bidders must state price per lamp per annum each, for sixty lights, and at what rate any lights over sixty desired by the City will be furnished.

TERMS OF CONTRACT.—The contract will be let from October 2nd, 1899, for a period of one year, lights to be paid for at the end of each month, at the contract rate.

ARC LIGHTS, CANDLE POWER &c.—Each and every light shall burn from dusk until daylight, each and every night during the term of the contract; and shall be arc lights of 2,000 candle-power equal in steadiness and brilliancy to any 2,000 candle power lamps in use in any City in the United States. Each lamp must average at least 450 Watts Electric Power or a potential difference of fifty volts between the terminals of lamps; said lamps requiring a current of 9.5 Amperes, under above conditions. The City reserving the right through their authorized agents to make such tests as may be necessary to determine the amount of light given.

DEFECTIVE LIGHTS.—A reduction of the cost price of service of any arc lamp will be made for such time as said arc lamp may fail to be lighted, during the designated hours for such lighting. Inefficient or defective arc lamps are to be removed, and a suitable and efficient lamp substituted, upon reasonable notice being given by the proper City official, to the company operating the same.

PROVISIONS.

(A).—The successful bidder hereto shall obligate himself or themselves, to furnish incandescent lights or arc lights, to any and all private parties who may want same, provided said parties are within a reasonable distance of any public light, and such lights are to be furnished at such prices as are charged for similar lights in other cities of like size and conditions as this place.

(B).—The successful bidder hereto shall indemnify the City of Hopkinsville against any suits which may be brought against said City by reason of injury to person or property, resulting from the construction and operating of its electric light plant and to make good all damage that may be done or that may accrue to the streets, alleys, lanes and public places of said City, by reason of its buildings and making extensions and repairs to said electric light plant, to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets of said Council, of said City. And to cause no unnecessary delays or prolonged obstructions to travel or traffic on said streets.

(C).—The contract to be let to the lowest and best bidders, the City reserving the right to reject any and all bids.

(D).—All persons making bids under this ordinance, shall be required to furnish with their bids, satisfactory evidence of their ability to furnish lights to the City in pursuance of the terms of this ordinance.

GOEBEL REPLIES.

Makes a Candid Statement About the Reported Deal.

Never at Any Time Proposed to Withdraw or Abate His Efforts to Win.

"The interview with Mr. O. O. Stealey, at Washington, printed in today's Enquirer, prompts this statement. Mr. Stealey, at least inferentially, says that at some time during the Kentucky Democratic State convention I promised Mr. Stone to withdraw from the contest for the nomination for Governor and nominate him.

I have passed unnoticed whatever has appeared upon this subject in Republican newspapers. I deem it proper not to pass unnoticed any such statement in a recognized Democratic newspaper.

During the convention and since I have denied the statement that I ever promised Mr. Stone, or anyone else, to withdraw from the contest for the nomination and nominate him; and Mr. Woodson, who was the only intermediary between Mr. Stone and myself, and who is fully cognizant of all that occurred between Mr. Stone and myself, has repeatedly stated in his newspaper, the Owensboro Messenger, that no such agreement was made.

There is nothing better known than the fact that before the convention convened and during its progress, I repeatedly and publicly refused to make such an agreement.

I wish to say now that any statement made by anyone whomsoever, that I ever promised to withdraw, or in anywise suggested that I would withdraw from the contest for the nomination and would nominate Stone, is untrue. The agreement that was made between Mr. Stone and myself related, as Mr. Woodson has stated, wholly to the organization of the convention; and, as Mr. Woodson has also said, it was in every conference with Mr. Stone expressly stated that the matter of the nomination must be determined in and by the convention.

Mr. Stone told me, and his friends told my friends, that if he could not be nominated and he and they preferred my nomination and would do all they could to bring my nomination about. I said to Mr. Stone, and I have no doubt my friends said for me, that if I could not be nominated we preferred the nomination of Mr. Stone and would do all that we could to bring it about. But there was not made by me, nor for me, to anyone at any time, any promise, suggestion or intimation, either expressed or implied, that I would in anywise, or to any extent, abate my efforts to be nominated.

WM. GOEBEL.

The Republican Ticket.

The Republican Convention completed its ticket the second day and adjourned.

W. S. Taylor, who heads the ticket, is the present Attorney General of Bradley's administration. He has come up in life from an humble beginning.

John Marshall, the nominee for Lieutenant Governor, is a lawyer and one of the best known men in Louisville.

Calob Powers, nominated for Secretary of State, comes from the Eleventh district. He did not figure as a candidate until shortly before the convention. His Eleventh district friends made a strong demand that he be given the honor, and it was conceded.

Judge C. J. Pratt is known as an able lawyer. He has spent most of his life in this State, and is at present a resident of Hopkins county. He was placed on the ticket for Attorney General by agreement with the Taylor machine.

Elder John S. Sweeney is a preacher in the Christian church, his home being in Bourbon county. His many friends in the convention pushed him through for Auditor on his personal popularity.

Walter R. Day is in the Tenth district's representative on the ticket. He lives in Breathitt and his relatives are rich men in Eastern Kentucky. Young Day himself is said to possess a comfortable fortune. It was urged that if he was put on the ticket there would be a nice bundle of money dumped into the campaign fund. Day went to the convention as a candidate for Auditor, but his friends switched him off to the Treasurer's race at the last minute.

Prof. John Burke, of Newport, the candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, is a native of Ohio. He has been living in Newport for a number of years, and for a long time has been School Superintendent of that city.

John W. Theobald, nominated for Commissioner of Agriculture, is a conductor on the L. & N. railroad between Louisville and Covington. As his train traverses a fine farming section, he has had opportunities to study agriculture from his car windows during the last 20 or 30 years.

OWENSBORO WEDDING.

Miss Powers and Mr. Kimbley Will Marry Thursday.

The marriage of Miss Jessie Cochran Powers and Dr. Hugh Kimbley is announced to take place next Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Col. and Mrs. J. D. Powers. It will be a very quiet home wedding, conducted by Dr. H. C. Settle, of Russellville, an intimate friend and former pastor of the family. They will leave immediately after the ceremony for the Massachusetts coast, where they will spend the summer. The marriage, while not unexpected, comes as a pleasant surprise to their friends at this time. Both are well known and popular, and their acquaintance dates from childhood. Miss Powers is the eldest daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. D. Powers and is an exceedingly bright and attractive young woman. Dr. Kimbley is the eldest son of the late Dr. J. F. Kimbley and has been practicing his profession and managing his father's large estate for several years.—Messenger.

Some Goebel Hearings.

Goebel's opposers in denouncing him, forget to tell the people that he introduced and had passed a bill reducing the tolls for foot passengers to one cent across the Covington and Cincinnati bridge, a bill repealing the charters of the State lotteries of Kentucky, a bill making gambling a felony, a bill empowering cities of the second class to establish and maintain free public libraries, that through his influence were passed the Chinn school book bill, a bill regulating the cost of school books, and the McChord railroad bill, a bill requiring the railroads to base their freight charges on the amount of work done and not on the competition they may have.—Fulton Leader.

The Blackberry Crop.

To most people the blackberry is the product of the wild bush, and few people know that they are, or can be, cultivated with profit. This year the wild or volunteer crop is comparatively a failure, but a number of farmers have become interested in the cultivation of the fruit. Among these is Mr. J. J. Lane, of Florence Station. He has already marketed from one acre 100 crates at an average of $2 per crate, and says the prospects are for as nearly as much more, for which he will realize as good a price. This is the second season of bearing. The berries require little cultivation.—Paducah News.

There ought to be half a dozen good poultry shows in Kentucky. Nothing arouses interest in fine poultry like a show. Hopkinsville is arranging to hold her first one next winter. Carl C. A LYNCHING BEE SPOILED

Too Much Attention Paid to the Etiquette of the Occasion.

I DON'T take the personal interest in lynchings that I used to," said Uncle Atkinson, as he sat on the veranda of his hotel at Fresno, Cal., talking over the recent lynchings in the south. "I ain't entirely sure I'm getting old, but the last lynching party I took part in disgusted me with the whole business. You see, Pete Lansing stole a horse and we got a party together and started out after him. Pete gave us quite a chase, but at last we struck a hot trail near Pine hills, and then we gained on him so fast that when our little party of vigilantes swept around the curve at the foot of the hills Pete was only half a mile ahead and pushing his horse at a gallop across the prairie. We called to him to stop. Of course, he couldn't stop at that distance, and as he knew we wanted to hang him for horse stealing, he wouldn't have stopped if he had heard, but it was the first time since we organized that the Diamond Center vigilantes had been called out, and we wanted to do the things in proper style. So we formally summoned Pete to surrender. Dick Evans, our leader, wanted everything done exactly right, but some of the other boys think he was too particular on this occasion. A well-born society affair is one thing and a lynching bee is another, and there isn't any use trying to combine them.

"However that may be, after we had called upon Pete to stop we thought we had done all that 'etiquette,' as Pete called it, required, and we began to pump bullets at him. Pretty soon one of the bullets struck his horse and it tumbled over. Pete knew there wasn't any use running after that, so he lit a cigarette—he was a sort of a dandy in some ways—and waited for us to come up.

"Guess we've got you this time, Pete," says Dick. "Looks that way," replies Pete, as calm and unconcerned as if he didn't have any part in the show. "What is the next thing on the programme?"

"The nearest tree was about half way up the pine hills, and we allowed the first thing to be done was to take Pete to where the trees were. 'After we reach a tree we won't have much trouble finding out what to do next, Mr. Pete Lansing,' said one of the boys in an ugly kind of way. The man who spoke had lost three or four good horses that season, and was feeling kind of sore over it, but Pete looked quite bright at being talked to in this kind of fashion, and Dick Evans spoke up:

"That'll do you, Tom. That's no kind of a way to speak to a man who is almost dead."

"But our troubles had only begun. Pete's horse was dead and he swore that he wasn't going to walk to the pine hills. 'Nobody ever heard of a man tramping a mile to his own hanging. You fought me fair and square,' says Pete, 'and I don't kick on that, but I ain't going to hoof it across this prairie. A man in my position ought to have a little politeness shown him.'

"Jim Haly, who runs the Crescent saloon, happened to have a deck of cards in his pocket and the deck was so worn around and the low man gave up his horse to Pete. We all agreed to this, and Pete being in one way our guest we let him deal. That made a delay, for Pete dealt himself the low hand, and as he didn't have any horse we had to deal again. One of the boys got stuck this time, so Pete took his horse and we started out for the pine hills.

"It was pretty dark when we reached the hills, but one of the party got out a rope and we thought the business would be over in a few minutes. But here Pete made another kick. For a man who was going to be hanged he was the most particular, bothersome fool I ever ran across.

"I don't want to be hung right here alongside of the road where everybody will see me. Take me a little ways into the woods and do the job there."

"But we want your body to be an example," says Dick Evans, sort of doubtfully.

"That made Pete mad. 'Example,' he snarled. 'I take a horse, you boys catches me and strangles me up. So far all right. But I don't want my body used as the end of a Sunday school lesson. Besides, what kind of a thing would that be to show strangers thinking to invest their money in the growing town of Diamond Center? You fellows ain't got any patriotism. Example! Example be hanged!' says Pete, scornfully.

"There seemed to be a lot of sense in what Pete said, so we pushed on about a hundred yards into the woods. It was pretty dim outside by this time, and in among the trees it was really dark, but Pete was riding in the middle of the party, and it didn't look as if there was any way in which he could escape. Pretty soon we reached a tree with big boughs hanging low down, just the tree for what we wanted.

"I guess this will do all right," says Dick, who was riding ahead.

"We stopped, and one of the boys threw the end of the rope over the bough of the tree, while I fixed the noose about Pete's neck. Pete had been riding with his head down, as if he was thinking pretty hard, and not paying much attention to what was going on, but when he felt the rope about his neck he looked up sorrowfully and disgusted, rather than angry.

"I guess that this is the first time any of you boys have ever taken part in a feast of this kind," says he, sort of sarcastic like.

"We allowed it was.

"Well, it is a good thing you have camp a laughing stock if you acted this way with a stranger. I wish I had time to give you a rehearsal, says Pete, kind of regretfully, but it's growing too dark. Why, I actually believe you fellows would jerk a man over the nearby gates without giving him a chance to say a few words and speak a little prayer."

"We all was silent at this, for we had forgotten all about that part of the programme. So Pete dropped off his horse and went over to a little bush a few feet away from the tree we had thrown the rope over. Then he began to pray. I don't claim to be an authority on prayer, but I have always said that was no slouch of a prayer. Pete began with the Diamond Center camp and recommended every man, woman and child in it to the Lord. Most of them nodded it, but it made a long prayer. Then he prayed for the sheriff of the county, and after that for the governor of the state.

But Pete opened his eyes and looked at us reproachfully, and then started in as if he was just getting his second wind. The queen of England, the emperor of Germany, all the big foreign ducks Pete could think of were remembered to the Lord, and then, just as we were getting so impatient we couldn't have stood it much longer, Pete polished off his prayer with a general sort of blessing which took in all the parties he hadn't mentioned by name. It was a good prayer and covered the ground, but it took an awful long time.

"There didn't seem to be anything to interfere with 'the work we had assembled together to perform,' as Pete styled it in his prayer, when all of a sudden Pete cried out:

"My God, boys. The woods are on fire."

"All looked as hard as we could, but didn't see anything.

"Yes, they are," said Pete. "Look, you can just see the blaze away off to the northwest."

"Now, Pete had sort of entered into the spirit of the occasion so cheerfully and seemed so anxious to have the first lynching of the Diamond Center vigilantes got off just right that none of us suspected him of any treachery. The sound he really was. We all looked out to the northwest as hard as we could for a minute or two.

"Your eyes are all set, Pete," says I, turning around where he had been. But there wasn't any Pete, only away down the gully we could hear some one tramping down the bushes and running for all he was worth.

"We all rushed into the underbrush, but it wasn't any place for horses; besides, it was too dark to see much of anything. That thief of a Pete Lansing had run away from us in the first place until his horse was shot, and then he said he couldn't be hung anywhere except on the pine hills, and then, all the time pretending that he was anxious for the credit of the camp, he had prayed until it was too dark for us to see anything. He was nothing but a hypocrite, and played it low down on the boys who had always treated him right and were trying to send him off in good style. What became of him I don't know and don't care. None of the Diamond Center boys ever heard of him again.

"Two or three times since then the boys have wanted to get up lynching parties on appropriate occasions, but I have always said: 'No; if you catch a man cheating at cards or stealing a horse, shoot him. If you don't catch him, tell the sheriff. But as for lynching parties, count me out. I am disgusted with them.'—N. Y. Sun.

The fat individual goes slow all the year round, but it is in the summer that he feels his weight.

When a boy turns his bulging pocket inside out we marvel at the quantity and variety of articles he has stowed away. Odd lengths of string, marbles, a horse-chestnut, a top, broken nails, hickory-nuts, an apple, and many more articles are garnered by this "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." We think the collection must be hard on a boy's pocket. And it is. But do we ever think of the variety and miscellany of the substances we put into the pocket of our stomach? There's the apple and the nuts, and things besides, quite as indigestible as brass nails and with no more food value than so many marbles. And yet we wonder that the stomach "gives out." When the stomach breaks down under the strain of careless eating and irregular meals it can be perfectly and permanently restored to health and strength by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The action of this medicine on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition is so marked, that relief from disease is once experienced, and the bestaches liver, "troubles," kidney disorders, skin eruptions and other symptoms of a diseased stomach are quickly cured, whenever the use of laxative medicine is in harmony with the "Discovery," and assists its action by purging the bowels of food accumulations.

JOSEPH JENKS.

The First American to Work in Brass and Iron.

In the early history of our country, about 1650, among those who were known as a principal, skilled mechanic and machinist, was Joseph Jenks, a native of Hammersmith, near London, England, who was held in high estimation for his extraordinary ingenuity as an artificer, and many of his descendants to the present day have occupied prominent positions in civil life, and in relation to the industrial arts of the country. Of the early mechanic, who was the Tool Cahn of New England, Mr. Lewis, in his history of Lynn, Mass., remarks: "Joseph Jenks deserves to be held in perpetual remembrance in American history as being the first founder who worked in brass and iron on the western continent." By his hands the first models were made, and the first castings taken of many tools. The first article that had been cast was a small iron pot capable of containing about a quart.

As early as May, 1655, a patent was awarded Joseph Jenks, of Lynn, Mass., for seven years for improvement in the manufacture of scythes "for the more speedy cutting of grass." The innovation consisted in giving greater length and thinness to the blade, and in welding a bar of iron upon the back to stiffen and strengthen it, as in the modern scythe. This was an essential improvement upon the old form of English scythe, which was a very clumsy instrument, short and thick, like the bush or bramble scythe. In fact, but little radical change has been made since in the form of this agricultural implement. Joseph Jenks died in 1683. Of his sons, Joseph, the elder, after living for some time in Lynn, Mass., removed to Pawtucket, R. I., where he erected a forge; and two other sons went, we believe, to Boston, where Samuel Jenks & Son carried on the blacksmith business on Gardner's Wharf previous to 1759; and John Jenks had a store at No. 39 State street at the same time.—Hardware.

A MEAN TRICK.

How Two Husbands Made Their Wives Economize.

There was a moment's silence after the introduction. Womanlike, each was mentally "sizing the other up." Then one spoke:

"My husband frequently speaks of you," she said.

"Indeed," returned the other.

"My husband thinks you are wonderfully clever."

"Really? Why, that's the way my husband talks about you. He told me how you had reshaped and recovered that old parson, and so saved two dollars."

"Parson! Why, I never touched until my husband had harped all one day on your cleverness in upholstering and relining a perambulator at a saving of $10."

"Nonsense! The thing that made me do that was the way my husband talked about that parson. Then he got me to retrim a last year's hat because you were working over an old dress."

"But I never started to do that until my husband had told me five times about your hat. I wasn't going to admit that you could be any more economical than I am."

"Why, really, I heard of that dress 24 hours before I touched the hat."

"Impossible! I—then she stopped and her eyes began to flash. "I believe our husbands—," she began again.

"I believe they have," chimed in the other, becoming excited also.

"It's a wicked shame."

"An outrage. They've just tricked us, that's all."

"It was a regular plot. And to think how he made me work. I'll get a new dress to-day."

"And I a new hat."

The two women went into a milliner's shop and spent all the money they could scrape together. And the two men got mighty little for dinner that night, and when they complained they were promptly convinced that they ought to have said nothing.—Chicago Democrat.

Influence of the Stomach.

No man can talk in a discouraged and despondent tone when he is eating. The next time you hear a man talk "blue," don't try words of encouragement; try pie. We say a good deal about the controlling influence of the heart, the soul and the mind, but the stomach is more important.—Aitchison Globe.

THE TRAMP.

Railway System Said to Be Largely Responsible for Him.

At the request of the general manager of a large railroad company, Mr. Josiah Flynt, the tramp expert, spent two months recently in investigating the company's efforts to put a stop to the stealing of rides. He found that of all the roads of America this one had the worst reputation among the "hoboes." The "railroad fever" is hard to cure, but it is one that it behooves the companies to treat heroically. Writing in the Century, Mr. Flynt says:

"Can the tramps be driven off the railroads? It was to satisfy my own curiosity in regard to this question, and to find out how successful my employer, the general manager, had been in his attempt to answer it in the affirmative, that I undertook the investigation. Previous to his efforts to keep tramps off railroads, it had been thought, as he has stated, that it was cheaper to put up with them, nuisance though they were, than to pay the bills which a crusade against them would occasion. It has at last been demonstrated, however, that tramps can be refused free transportation by one of our greatest railroads, with a saving of expense to the company and with great benefit to the community, and the time has come when the public is justified in demanding that all railroads take a similar stand in regard to this evil.

"If all the railroad companies would agree upon concerted action against tramps, in a few years the following very satisfactory results would be achieved: First, very few tramps, if any, would try to beat their way on trains; second, an appreciable number of them would give up tramping entirely, because their present railroad privileges are to many the main attractions of the life; third, a few would try to become professional criminals again, partly out of revenge and partly because tramping on the turnpikes would be too disagreeable; and, fourth, a large number would take to the highways, where some might be able to do farm work, and where all would, at least, be in touch with farm life. The reader may take exception to the third possibility, and think that great harm would come of an increase in the professional criminal class; but as I have said, tramps are really discouraged criminals, and a return to the old life, of which they made a failure, would only land them in the penitentiary.

"It is probably impossible ever entirely to eliminate the vagrant element in a nation's life, and no such hope is held out in connection with the reform advocated in this article; but this much is certain: had all the railroads been as close to tramps, during my first excursions into Hobland, as one of them has recently become, one man, at least, would have attempted any free riding, and would not have found so many tramps to study."

EXPLOSIVE SEA SHELLS.

Found on Mobile Bay—Cause of the Phenomenon.

On Mobile Bay a young woman picked up a handful of shells left by the tide; among them were shells of a small marine "snail," the largest of which was probably a half-inch in diameter and the smallest some three-eighths of an inch. She dropped them into her pocket and forgot all about them until several days afterward, when an unpleasant odor in her wardrobe attracted her attention to them. On taking them out of the pocket she stepped on one which fell on the floor. The act was followed by an explosion, quite sharp, and loud enough to be heard in the adjoining room. Astonished, she concluded to try another, and the same result followed. The shells were then brought to the writer, who, on examination, found the mouth of each firmly closed by a membrane of greater or less thickness, formed by the drying of the animal slime. This had probably occurred soon after removal from the moisture of the beach, and the little inhabitant of the shell drying, the gases of decomposition had quite filled its internal space. On exerting a little pressure by squeezing the shell between two blocks of wood quite a loud explosion was produced, the fragments of the shell being thrown several feet. Subsequently, on trying the experiment, out of a dozen shells, only two failed to explode. The conditions most favorable to success in making the experiment seem to be removal from the beach in very hot, dry weather, which causes the slime to be exuded in greater quantity than usual and dries it up rapidly as it exudes.—National Druggist.

ORIGIN A MYSTERY.

Winn's Store and the Postoffice At Rose Hill Burn.

The general merchandise store of Mr. W. Baily Winn, at Rose Hill, six miles south-east of Lafayette, was destroyed by fire, together with the postoffice at that place, which was kept in the same building. The loss will probably foot up $1,500. There was no insurance, either on building or contents and the loss was therefore total. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but Mr. Winn thinks it possible that mice, while playing among matches, may have caused one to ignite, thus starting the flames.

YONTS BURNED OUT.

Big General Store at Johnson's Destroyed.

The Owner Was Away From Home—Loss Partially Covered.

The general merchandise store of L. Yonts, at Johnson's store post-office in North Christian, was burned at two o'clock a. m. Friday and everything indicates that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Mr. Yonts, the proprietor, was absent from home, in attendance at the Lexington convention, and the business was in charge of his clerk, a young man named C. Shelton. There was no fire in or about the building. No one slept in the store. Mrs. Yonts had occasion to go into the store about nine o'clock the night before and when she left the house everything was all right. The family was next aroused by the fire an hour or more before daylight, but nothing could be done. The house, a rough wooden building, and its entire contents, went up in smoke.

Mr. Yonts usually carried a stock of $6,000 or more, but being between season his insurance of $5,500 may cover most of the loss. The house itself was worth only a few hundred dollars.
